The Daily Courant.

Thurſday, July 8. 1708.

From the Amſterdam Gazette, dated July 6.

Naples, June 12.

BY Direction from the King, an Ordonance has been publiſh'd, by which all Eccleſiaſtical Revenues in this Kingdom belonging to Strangers, are Sequeſter'd. The Council of the Junta have met ſeveral Times in the Caſtle del Ovo, to conſult in what Manner to deal with the Priſoners of State. It has been reſolv'd to publiſh a Proclamation, to forbid the remitting of any Money to Rome, or to other Places of the Eccleſiaſtical State. Count Thaun has receiv'd Orders by a Courier from Vienna, to go and command in chief the Imperial Troops in Piemont: And Cardinal Grimani is to come hither forthwith, to ſucceed him as Viceroy.

From the Amſterdam Gazette, dated July 13.

Naples, June 20. The Dutcheſs of Matalona made a Viſit lately to the Counteſs of Thaun, our Vice-Queen, and made Sollicitations in Favour of the Duke her Husband, who is now allow'd the Liberty to walk about in the Caſtle and to receive Viſits from his Friends; which makes it believ'd he will ſoon be ſet at Liberty. The Counteſs having receiv'd the parting Compliments of the Lords and Ladies of the Court, is ſet out from hence for Loreto, whence ſhe will proceed to Milan, whither the Count her Husband will follow her about the End of this Month. Cardinal Grimani who is to ſucceed him in the Viceroyalty, is expected here in a few Days; as is alſo the Prince of Darmſtad to command the Forces in this Kingdom. Don Ferdinand Pignatelli, ſecond Son of the Duke de Monteleone, went from hence the 16th Inſtant for Barcelona, to make the Campaign in Catalonia as a Volunteer. They write from Rome, that a Letter is banded about there, written by the Pope to the Cardinal our Archbiſhop and to the Biſhops of this Kingdom and of the Milaneze, in which he Signifies to them, that thoſe who ſhall retain or diſpoſe of Eccleſiaſtical Revenues, in Favour of Seculars, have incurr'd the Cenſures of the Church. And 'tis ſaid that in a little Time Bulls of Excommunication will be fulminated againſt them.

From the Amſterdam Gazette, dated July 10.

Vienna, June 27. The 24th Inſtant the Count of Diamantſtein, great Chamberlain to the Elector Palatin, receiv'd his Imperial Majeſty's Inveſtiture of the Palatinate of the upper Rhine, with all its Dependencies, in the Name of his Electoral Highneſs Palatin, the Princes his Brothers, and the whole Rudolphin Line, which ſubſiſts at preſent in the Palatine Branches of Neubourg, Sultzbach, Deux-Ponts, and Birckenfeldt. Of which Inveſtiture a Patent has been drawn up, conformably to the Treaty of Weſtphalia and to the Golden Bull; by Virtue of which his Electoral Highneſs has Vote, Seat, and Dignity, next to the Crown of Bohemia, and preceedes all the other Secular Electors. The ſame Day there was a magnificent Turnament in the Gardens of the Palace of Favorita, in Honour of the Empreſs. The Knights Competitors for the Prizes were, the Emperour; the Prince of Lamberg; the Counts Martinitz, Salm, Gundacker of Dietrichſtein, Charles Sereni, Dietichſtein Knight of Malta, Zierotin, Colloredo, Charles of Dietrichſtein, Wahl, Zinzendorff, Althan, Wallenſtein, and Rothall. They all appear'd in moſt ſplendid Habits, mounted on excellent Horſes with rich Accoutrements, and enter'd the Liſts in proper Order, preceeded by Trumpets, Kettledrums, Pages, and Grooms of his Imperial Majeſty's Houſhold. The Judges of the Field, were Don Ferdinando Telles de Silva Count de Villa-Major, Ambaſſador Extraordinary from the King of Portugal; the Prince of Salm high Steward of the Houſhold to the Emperour; Count Trautſon great Chamberlain; and Count Wallenſtein great Marſhal of the Court. All the Knights gave Proofs of their Agility in the ſeveral Courſes, but above all the Dexterity of his Imperial Majeſty was admir'd and applauded: There were preſent at this noble Exerciſe, the Empreſs, the Arch-dutcheſſes, a great Number of Men and Women of Quality, and a Crowd of others. The Prizes were won by the following Knights: That for the Lance was run for anew (becauſe their firſt Archievements were equal) by the Counts of Salm, Sereni, Zierotin, Althan, and Wallenſtein; and the Prize was adjudg'd to the laſt. That for the Piſtol was alſo run for anew by the Emperour and Count Wallenſtein, and the Emperour carried it. That for the Javelin was run for anew likewiſe by the Emperour and the Prince of Lamberg, and his Majeſty carried it by his Dexterity. Count Zierotin won that for the Sword. And that for the greateſt Number of Heads fell to his Imperial Majeſty. Theſe Prizes were large Veſſels of Silver of excellent Workmanſhip. The 25th at Noon their Imperial Majeſties return'd hither from the Palace of Favorita; and the Ambaſſador of Portugal went to his Audience of the Imperial Family, with 7 Coaches with 6 Horſes, and a very numerous Retinue in rich Liveries; and ask'd in Marriage for the King his Maſter the Archdutcheſs Maria Anna. On this Occaſion there was a ſplendid Appearance at Court, and a Ball at Night: And the next Day the Ambaſſador gave a noble Entertainment in his Palace, and afterwards a Ball; caus'd Fountains of Wine to run for the People, and a good Sum of Money to be thrown out of the Windows to them.

From the Amſterdam Gazette, dated July 3.

Duſſeldorp, June 29. The 27th at Night, a Courier arriv'd from Vienna, with an Account, that the 24th Inſtant the Emperour Sign'd and gave the Inveſtiture of the upper Palatinate to his Electoral Highneſs our Prince, who receiv'd the Compliments of Congratulation upon it as he was Hunting, and at his Return to this City. Yeſterday arriv'd a Gentleman ſent by Baron Sickingen, Ambaſſador from his Electoral Highneſs at Ratisbon, to give an Account, that the 26th the Miniſter took his Seat in the Diet on the Part of his Electoral Highneſs, next to the King of Bohemia, above the other Secular Electors of the Empire.

Letters from Saxony of the 27th of laſt Month tell us, that the Troops of that Electorate hold themſelves conſtantly ready to march into the Field; and 'tis reported they will be imploy'd in Hungary. They write from Sileſia, that in the Principalities of Lignitz, Brieg, and Wohlaw, the Lutherans enjoy quietly the free Exerciſe of their Religion. They have re-eſtabliſh'd their Eccleſiaſtical Conſiſtories, the Directors of which are of the ſame Religion: But his Imperial Majeſty has the Power reſerv'd to him of nominating an Aſſeſſor in thoſe Conſiſtories.

From the Amſterdam Gazette, dated July 13.

Francfort, July 8. They write from the upper Rhine, that all is ready for the Execution of the Projects of the Elector of Hanover; But that he cannot yet paſs the River, becauſe that Water is ſo high and the Current ſo ſtrong.

From the Leiden Gazette, dated July 13.

Letters from Ratisbon of the 5th of July adviſe, that on the 3d a final Reſolution of the 3 Colleges to admit the Duke of Hanover as a Ninth Elector, was deliver'd to the Emperour's Commiſſioners; who have ſent it to his Imperial Majeſty for his Ratification.
